

Kings of Lyons . . .

France - Lyons' annual Festival of Lights dates back to 1851, when locals apparently lit up the city with thousands of candles in a spontaneous religious celebration.

Today, candles have given way to more advanced forms of illumination: a highlight of December's festival being a 4m diameter translucent sphere created by Paris-based Sky Light with the help of Jean Yves Orcel. French truss manufacturer FL Structures were chosen by the company to produce the aluminium sphere created in eight parts and comprising 360 facets mounted with coloured gels.
